OTTAWA, Nov. 10, 2005 (Canada NewsWire via COMTEX) -- DFT Microsystems Canada today announced that DA-Test has successfully completed evaluations of the DJ60 Controlled Jitter Source and concluded that the DJ60 represents a significant step forward in the testing of IC serial data interfaces such as PCI Express and Serial Rapid IO. The conclusions are a result of extensive technical analysis and comparative benchmarking performed at DA-Test.

"For the purposes of design validation and characterization of high-speed serial interfaces, the DJ60 provides compelling advantages over alternative approaches," said Scott Bulbrook, VP Engineering at DA-Test. "The DJ60 technology is also potentially very interesting as an enhancement to ATE systems in semiconductor production testing. ...
